"The members of the Selden Civic Association take great pride in their community," said Supervisor Romaine. "Meeting with them gives me a good perspective of the issues that they deal with and I look forward to coming back again soon."

Councilman LaValle said, "The Selden Civic meetings have a great turnout and the members always engage in a lively and informative discussion. Community input is very important if people want to make a difference, so I encourage residents to get involved and join their local civic associations."

The Selden Civic Association was established in 1932 to promote civic and social welfare in Selden and surrounding areas.
